THE "GRANDFATHER" CLAUSE .- ID he Alabama constitutional convention yesterday Mr. Sanders, of Limestone, intrduced a new scheme of suffrage reform It provides for an educational qualification with the Louisiana "grandfather" clause. In confines officebolding to the clause. In confines officebolding to the whites. The most significant ordinance yet introduced was by General Sanford It authorizes the State to construct works of internal improvement for the transportation of passengers and freight. It provides that only convicts shall be employed in construction. The ordinance, if adopted, would greatly diminish railroad earnings in the State. A general wrangle ensued over the conventionis probable curtailment of delegates' rights to introduce ordinances. It was flually decided that ordinances hereafter introduced must be matter hereafter introduced must be matter that differs from the present constitu-

A PRISONER'S COMPLAINT .- The Department of Justice is in receipt of a letter from a prisoner at the Fort Leavenworth penitentiary. This pris-oner says that recently he severely burned his arm. He was compelled to perform his duties as usual, however. He didn't mind that so much, he says, but when he looked out of the window but when he looked out of the window of his shop, out over the links connected with the prison, and saw Oberlin M. Carter, "who stole hundreds of thousands of dollars," playing golf with the prison physician and other prison officials, he thought that was "rubbing it is" and worthy of complaint. The officials of the Depretment of Justice will investigate whether Cart Carter has been treated with 100 Capt. Carter has been treated with too
